Art Unit: 2879

1. A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claim 1 of prior U.S. Patent No. 6,267,636. This is a double patenting rejection.

3. No art rejection is made. The disclosure of Yamanobe (JP patent 9-237571 dated Sept 9, 1997 (corresponding to US patent 6,221,4236) recognizes that water vapor or moisture undesirably affects the properties of a surface conduction type field emission device activated by heating in an atmosphere comprising carbon while applying a voltage between the electrodes. While the prior art (Ikeda et al, 5,591,061) further recognized that aromatic carbon compounds are desirable compounds for the process, the prior art does not teach or suggest that the aromatic compounds used in the process should have a polarity or polar group.

Remarks

This application included an amendment dated May 13, 2001 with a statement that a further amendment would be shortly filed. The examiner contacted applicant's attorney in September of 2002 to request that such paper be filed. However, as of January 28, 2003 no paper had been received from the applicants. In response to a telephone call from the examiner, the attorney confirmed that no further amendment had been filed. Therefore, an action on the merits of the currently pending claim has been made.
